The Imperial Honours System
For service during WWI and WWII Australian personnel were awarded Imperial campaign medals. The same medals were issued from the Imperial system to all Commonwealth personnel. In addition, after WWII, Commonwealth countries generally issued a unique medal to recognise the service of their own people. In Australia, the Australian Service Medal 1939–45 was issued.

How do I apply for medals?
If you would like further information on eligibility or to ascertain what medals have been previously awarded or remain unissued, please complete an online application form at www.defence.gov.au/medals.

How do I apply for replacement medals?
Current and former serving members may apply for replacement medals if they have been lost or damaged. Defence Honours and Awards can only provide replacement medals for deceased individuals in very specific circumstances.

Please refer to www.defence.gov.au/medals for more information on the policy and to complete an online application form.

Can I wear my relative’s medals?
Although not officially sanctioned, a protocol has been accepted that family members of a deceased recipient may wear that person’s medals on commemorative occasions such as Anzac Day and Remembrance Day.

In these circumstances, the medals should be worn on the right to show that the wearer is not the original recipient.

The war to end all wars – the Great War (WWI)

Britain declared war on Germany and its allies on 4 August 1914 and called on its Dominions and Colonies for assistance. Australia responded to the call within days and the Australian Imperial Force supported the British Empire until armistice was declared on 11 November 1918.

The Second World War (WWII)

Australia entered World War II on 3 September 1939, shortly after the invasion of Poland by Germany. Australian forces fought in both the European and Pacific theatres of WWII until 14 August 1945 when the war was officially ended and Australia was at peace again.

World War One

- The 1914–15 Star
  Awarded for service in specified theatres of war between 5 August 1914 and 31 December 1915.
- The British War Medal 1914–1920
  Instituted by King George V in 1919 to mark the end of the Great War. Eligibility was later extended to cover post-war mine clearance and service in Russia during 1919 and 1920.
- The Mercantile Marine Medal
  Awarded to members of the Mercantile Marine who qualified for the British War Medal 1914–1920 and served at sea on at least one voyage through a danger zone.
- The Victory Medal
  Commemorates the victory of the Allied Forces over the Central Powers. Each of the Allied nations issued a ‘Victory Medal’ to their own nationals.
