Snapshot of Wagga Wagga

There are many reasons why people relocate - family, employment opportunities, starting new businesses, transfers, retirement or "lifestyle change". Whatever the reason we do hope you consider it as "the right move".

Wagga Wagga

Now - Wagga Wagga is one of Australia's leading regional cities with a population of over 60,000 and is located in the centre of Australia's population triangle (Sydney, Melbourne and Adelaide – and only 2 ½ hours to Canberra). It is the hub and major retail/industry centre of the Riverina.

Located on the banks of the beautiful Murrumbidgee River, the city is home to Charles Sturt University, Royal Australian Air Force Base and the Kapooka Army Recruit Training Centre. Wagga Wagga is a city of diverse opportunity and offers an attractive and enviable lifestyle with education, health, sport and cultural facilities comparable to the metropolitan areas.

Then – The traditional owners are the Wiradjuri people and it is from their language that Wagga Wagga takes its name. Wagga means crow and the repetition of a word is their way of expressing the plural, a 'place of many crows'. In 1829, Captain Charles Sturt followed the Murrumbidgee River past the site of the current city. Three years later, settlers following his trail established cattle stations in the area. Within 20 years several villages had been established and the district grew. Wagga Wagga was proclaimed a town in 1849 and a city in 1946.
