

The poorly produced video "Hunt for HMAS Sydney" shows, among the wreckage strewn on the seabed, a tyre. Its only possible origin could be from the Walrus aircraft. However, an enlargement of the tyre depicted shows that it has a square profile like those of a motor vehicle – an aircraft tyre is quite different, with a round profile and a completely different tread. See attached photographs for comparison. Tyre in the video appears to be branded with the word BARTLET or BARNET(T).

Square profile with tread on the edge.

