

Note the upright parts of the launching apparatus. The sloping part of the catapult actually extends out and can be retracted. Normally the catapult can be seen to be square at both ends when its inboard.